

A Study of Perlocutionary in Two Different Types of Commandments in Quran and Their Translations

Seyyed Ali Azghar Sultani^{*1}, Mahdi Moqaddasi-niya²

1- Associate Professor, Baqer al-Ulum University, Qom, Iran

2- Assistant Professor, University of Qom, Qom, Iran

Received: 31/3/2016

Accepted: 8/2/2017

Abstract

This study is to explain the semantic and pragmatic functions of two different types of Quranic commandments: commandments in imperative mood and commandments in declarative mood. Based on a descriptive-analytical method, this paper studies such commandments through linguistic pragmatics and discourse analysis. The results show that both imperative and declarative sentences/ utterances are used to issue commands, but their usage results in specific inferences. The imperative form is used when the intended commandment pertains to a personal and/ or urgent situation, thus taking place in an interpersonal discourse situation. The declarative form, on the other hand, is used when the speaker does not intend to emphasize on the interpersonality and urgency of the command. The declarative form of command also shows the knowledge and certainty of the speaker with regard to the execution of the command. As a result, declarative forms are mostly used in contexts where the high status speaker is to impose his commandments, rules, and orders. When it comes to the translation of the Holy Quran, translators had different reactions towards the declarative commandments. In the case of verses pertaining to jurisprudential verdicts or cases where the command is explicitly stated, some have used "shall". In some cases, too, they have not noticed the imperative mood, i.e. the existence of a commandment at all.

Keywords: declarative mood, imperative mood, linguistics of Quran, speech acts, translation of Quran

*Corresponding author e-mail address: aasultani@yahoo.com

A critical review of the translation of "Halal Tayyib" in 54 Persian translations of the Quran

Akbar Sajedi^{*1}

1- Assistant Professor, Department of Islamic Studies, University of Medical Sciences, Tabriz, Iran

Received: 17/8/2016

Accepted: 14/2/2017

Abstract

The words "Halal Tayyib" and "Tayyibat" used in the Qur'an, more than twenty times (explicitly or as a clear example) about food. This phrase has been translated by the translators of the Quran in various forms. The question that arises in this context is that: what is the exact meaning of "Halal Tayyib"? The author of the article suggests two meanings for this phrase: "Persian: گوارا tasty" and "Persian: خوش good" and continues to prove these two meanings based on the realistic evidences. In this regard, more than fifty Persian translations of Quran have been reviewed, and then the result has been that the meanings of "Persian: پاکیزه clean" and "Persian: حلال lawful" are not accurate for this word but considered among the figurative meanings of it. Most of the translators have not translated "Halal" in its precise meaning. But in the meantime there are interpreters who translated "Tayyib" to "Persian: گوارا و لذیذ tasty and delicious" but unfortunately they translated this word in various forms and did not adopt a single procedure in all the verses of the Holy Quran. But it should be noted that some interpreters adopted a single procedure and translated the word "Tayyib" to "Persian: پاکیزه clean" in all cases, although it is not an exact equivalent for "Tayyib". Another finding of the present study is that the combination of "Tayyip" and "halal" is an adjectival combination which most of the translators did not pay attention to it and finally translated it with the conjunction letter "Halal and Tayyib".

Keywords: Persian translations of Quran, "Halal Tayyib", "Govara", "Pakizeh", adjective, conjunction.

* Corresponding author e-mail address: akbarsajedi@gmail.com

The challenge translation of the literal similarity singular verses in Holy Quran (Case study: The heterogeneous in terms of noun and verb or type of verbs)

Karam Siyavoshi^{*1}, Somayyeh salmanian²

1- Associate professor, Department of theology, Bu-Ali Sina University, Hamedan, Iran

2- MA of the Quran and Hadith studies, Bu-Ali Sina University, Hamedan, Iran

Received: 19/5/2016

Accepted: 18/10/2016

Abstract

The Quran consists of endless wonders and beauty. Linguistic and literary aspects are the context for major of attractions and points of venerable in Quran. Part of this beauty presented in the verses that are largely similar together both from thematically and in terms of verbal and only in a few letters or words are different. Quranic scholars have mentioned this as similar words to avoid further confusion with the spiritual allegorical verses that is in the field of Quranic sciences. An attentive discussion about these verses is their translation to Persian. This is because their similar appearance is deceptive and without paying attention to the slight incompatibility in the words of these verses, similar understanding and therefore similar translations is presented. This leads to the faulty translation. This article, provided with descriptive approach and critical analysis, and considered cases of verbal singular allegorical verses, in particular different cases in terms of nouns, verbs or verb type, and in addition to analyzing the reasons for their similarities and differences, the provided translations of these verses, by the translators of the Qur'an: (Ayati, khorramshahi, Sha'rani, fuladvand, Qomshhay, Makarem Shirazi) has been investigated. Reviewing these translations proved that the implications of these verses, not translated correctly and firmly, in most cases. So the author has offered more accurate translations of these verses.

Keywords: translation, Holy Quran, literal similarity, literal similarity singular, criticism

* Corresponding author e-mail address: karam.siyavoshi@yahoo.com

Critical Study of Emphasis Devices of Ablative Absolute and Turning Synonyms in the English Translations of the Holy Qur'an Based on House Textual Theory (Case of Study: Shakir, Irving, Hilālī – Khān Translations)

Mahmoud Vaezi¹, Qasem Faez²,
Mohammad Reza Rasuli Ravandi^{3*}

1- Assistant Professor of Quran and Hadith Sciences, University of Tehran, Tehran, Iran

2- Professor of Quran and Hadith Sciences, University of Tehran, Tehran, Iran

3- PhD Student of Quran and Hadith Sciences, University of Tehran, Tehran, Iran

Received: 11/9/2016

Accepted: 4/12/2016

Abstract

Special literature of the Qur'an leads to difficulty of its translation. Study of emphatic devices as a grammar technique in Qur'an translation reveals their unbalanced equivalents based on exist theories of translation science. Because of the position of this technique in source language, assessment of ablative absolute and turning synonyms based on House textual theory can lead to their precise translation. Study of aforementioned emphasis devices; in Shakir, Irving and Hilali-Khan translations shows some Inequalities in comparing with source language like; imprecise equivalence of ablative absolute not reflecting of its emphatic structure and qualification and unbalanced grammar translation of turning synonyms (by vāv). But their translations are equivalent in some cases like; making emphatic structure equivalence by parallel structure in translation of turning synonyms (by vāv and Lā). Though felicitous miracle of the Qur'an, linguistics differentiates and the translator role, himself, have effective role about balanced or unbalanced translation of these emphatic devices, but based on linguistic position of these technique in source language, the House overt translation method can be considered as better method in this field.

Keywords: Qur'an English Translation, Ablative Absolute, Turning Synonyms, House Textual Theory, Lexical and Grammar Balance

* Corresponding author e-mail address: mr.rasuli@ut.ac.ir

The Semantic Frames of the Verb “Ra’ā” (beholding) on the Holy Koran and the Persian Formats (Based on Charles Fillmore's the Semantic Meaning Theory)

Farzaneh Haji-Qasemi^{*1}, Nasrollah Shameli²

1- PHD Student of Arabic Language and literature, Isfahan, Iran

2- Professor, University of Isfahan, Iran

Received: 27/11/2016

Accepted: 13/2/2017

Abstract

The eye is the most important body member which is applied for receiving different extern data, saving them in the three layers of mind, that is, (imagination, hallucination, conception) as well as the semantic formatting. The verb “Ra’ā” (beholding) as the main work of the eye, has this conception to expand the width of its meaning, it means, plus to the external visiting it can reason the internal too. Holding to this matter in converting the Persian texts and interpreting verses one has to monitorize the semantic coherence as well as the language coordinate. In Holy Koran according to the eyesight ability of the human being achieving the recognition of the complex and abstract concepts of mind is taken into account greatly, hence, the already lecture is trying to analyze, the semantic frames of the verb “Ra’ā” (beholding) according to the Fillmore's semantic meanings theory. Using the cognitive linguistic, in the verses (Makarem shirazi, Aerfah, Pourjavadi, Khoram del, Elahi Gomshei and Safarzadeh). In the symbols of the under research Koran the verb “Ra’ā” (beholding) has an abstract also concrete frame which is the external the very eye of the head. The outcome of the research shows that the translators in converting the Persian semantic meaning didn't handle it correctly, considering, language coordinate. It can be said that they didn't care about well, taking account the gap between Persian equivalences such as, beholding and observing and sometimes they have been used instead of each other.

Key words: Holy Koran, The Cognitive Linguistic, The Semantic Frame Hypothesis, Charles Fillmore, The verb beholding

* Corresponding author e-mail address: Farzaneh70.ghasemi@gmail.com

The Analysis of the meaning of “Arabic Fa” in Persian Translations of Quran

Ali Haji-Khani^{*1}, Abolfazl Haji Heydari², Sadeq Abbasi³

1- Assistant Professor, Tarbiat Modares University, Tehran, Iran

2- PhD Student of Quran and Hadith Sciences, Tarbiat Modares University, Tehran, Iran

3- PhD Student of Quran and Hadith Sciences, Tarbiat Modares University, Tehran, Iran

Received: 16/5/2015

Accepted: 2/6/2016

Abstract

According to the opinion of scholars of Arabic language and literature, there are too many different types of (Fa) used in Arabic language. For that reason, translators of Quran have been faced with difficulty in choosing the appropriate methods for translating the “Arabic Fa”. This article, based on the descriptive-analytic method, firstly aims to review the use of the “Arabic Fa” in Arabic language and literature and then seeks to analyze the different types of “Fa” in many Persian translations of Quran. The most important result of this study is that the “Arabic Fa” in Holy Quran falls into two categories: “Atifah Fa” and “Rabitah Fa”. “Atifah Fa” itself falls into too many categories such as: Taqib, Sababiyat, Taqri, and Talil... And finally authors have come to this conclusion that translating the “Fasihah, Taliliyah and Rabetah Fas” is more difficult than other “Arabic Fas”.

Keywords: Translation of (fa), “Atifah Fa”, “Rabitah Fa” “Fasiha Fa”

*Corresponding author e-mail address: ali.hajikhani@modares.ac.ir

A Review of Persian translation of Quran (Case study: the Tenth-Century Translation)

Hossein Taktabar Firooz-jaei^{*1}, Mahdi Naseri², Hasan Meghyasi³

1- Assistant Professor, University of Qom, Qom, Iran

2- Assistant Professor, University of Qom, Qom, Iran

3- Assistant Professor, University of Qom, Qom, Iran

Received: 17/10/2016

Accepted: 11/1/2017

Abstract

Holy Quran has been translated into Persian several times and on the other hand, a lot of criticism and review have been done concerning the Persian translations of the Quran. Meanwhile, the Tenth-Century Translation of Quran has not been studied so far, in spite of its attractions and strengths. So in this regard, the authors of this paper seek to introduce and explain this unknown translation based on the descriptive - analytic method to assess the success of the translation in conveying the divine message to Persian language. The results show that this translation is not often faithful to the grammatical structures of the Holy Quran. The most important strengths of the Tenth-Century Translation are as follows: exact Persian equivalents, precise meanings of Quranic words, considering the deep structures of Holy Verses in translation, paying attention to the morphological and literal and rhetorical characteristics of the Holy Quran.

Keywords: Quran, the Tenth-Century Translation, criticism of translation, language structures

* Corresponding author e-mail address: h.taktabar@yahoo.com

A Biannual Journal of Qur'an-Hadīth Translation Studies

Volume 3, Number 6, Fall & Winter 2016-2017

- A Review of Persian translation of Quran (Case study: the Tenth-Century Translation)..... 1
Hossein Taktabar Firooz-jaei, Mahdi Naseri, Hasan Meghyasi
- The Analysis of the meaning of “Arabic Fa” in Persian Translations of Quran 31
Ali Haji-Khani, Abolfazl Haji Heydari, Sadeq Abbasi
- The Semantic Frames of the Verb “Ra’ā” (beholding) on the Holy Koran and the Persian Formats (Based on Charles Fillmore's the Semantic Meaning Theory) 57
Farzaneh Haji-Qasemi, Nasrollah Shameli
- Critical Study of Emphasis Devices of Ablative Absolute and Turning Synonyms in the English Translations of the Holy Qur'an Based on House Textual Theory (Case of Study: Shakir, Irving, Hilālī – Khān Translations)..... 85
Mahmoud Vaezi, Qasem Faez, Mohammad Reza Rasuli Ravandi
- The challenge translation of the literal similarity singular verses in Holy Quran (Case study: The heterogeneous in terms of noun and verb or type of verbs)..... 125
Karam Siyavoshi, Somayyeh salmanian
- A critical review of the translation of "Halal Tayyib" in 54 Persian translations of the Quran 157
Akbar Sajedi
- A Study of Perlocutionary in Two Different Types of Commandments in Quran and Their Translations 191
Seyyed Ali Azghar Sultani, Mahdi Moqaddasi-niya
- Abstract 219

4. The articles should include the following files:

- A pdf file including the whole article without the reference information of the author (s) of the article;
- A word file including the entire main article along with the name and complete characteristics of the author (s).
- Complementary files including a commitment from showing that the article will neither be published in another journal nor will it be simultaneously sent to other journals; the approval form of the article for the articles elicited from theses or dissertations and the approval form of research works for independent articles;

5. The typesetting of the article should be done in word 2007 or word 2010, line spacing should be single, and the margins should be 2, 2.5, 2.5 and 3 centimeters for top, bottom, right and left margins, respectively. In typing the articles, it is necessary to use half-space. The authors are required to use the following fonts:

Farsi text: B Lotus soft 12; English text: Times 11; Arabic text: Traditional Arabic; article title: Bold B Nazanin 15; author, (s), reference information: Bold B Nazanin 12; Farsi abstract: Bold B Nazanin 10; within-text titles: Bold B Nazanin 13; references: B Nazanin 12.

6. In the articles with more than one author, it is essential that the name of the correspondent author be mentioned in the title page.

7. Referencing:

Book: Family name of the author(s)/his/her first name, book's title (in italic), translator, place of publication, publisher, publication year, and the related DOI.

Journal: Family name of the author(s) / his/her first name, the article's title (within the "quotation marks"), journal's name (in italic), the journal number, numbers of the first and the last pages of the article, publication year, and the related DOI.

Note: If the author is a legal entity (organization, institute, etc.), the title of that legal entity should be mentioned instead of the full name of the author.

8. The articles should have not been published already, nor be currently under consideration elsewhere.

9. The journal has the right of rejecting, accepting or editing the articles, and the received articles will not get returned.

Guidelines for Paper Submission

The articles in this journal are only accepted through the journals' Website of Tarbiat Modares University: mmtqh@modares.ac.ir

All contributors are kindly requested to consider the following points:

1. The Modares Journal of Qur'an-Hadīth Translation Studies is specialized in translation of Qur'an-Hadīth studies, and just accepts relevant topics including the following themes:

- Importance and Necessity of Translating the Qur'an and Hadīth
- Supporting Qur'an and Hadīth Translation
- Qur'an Translation and Islamic Studies
- Differences between Translating the Word of Allah and the Word of Man
- Differences between Translating the Qur'an and Non-Qur'anic Literary Texts
- Principles and Methods of Qur'an and Hadīth Translation
- Qur'an Translations quoted in Poetry and Prose
- Challenges of Qur'an and Hadīth Translation
- Units of Qur'an and Hadīth Translation
- Principles of Qur'an and Hadīth Translation
- Translation of Polysemic Words in the Qur'an and Hadīth
- (Un)translatability of the Qur'an and Hadīth
- Qur'an and Hadīth Translation Assessment
- Sociology of Qur'an and Hadīth Translation
- Characteristics of the Qur'an and Hadīth Translator
- Qur'an Translation and Translator's Ideology
- Earliest Versions of Qur'an and Hadīth Translations
- Ancient Translations of the Qur'an and Hadīth
- Contemporary Translations of the Qur'an and Hadīth

2. The structure of the article should include Persian and English abstracts, keywords, introduction, main body (theoretical discussions, data and research methodology, research findings, analysis and conclusion), acknowledgement, references and appendix.

3. The article should contain maximally 18 pages including the text, figures, tables, maps, references and the English abstract while observing the typesetting standards of the journal. The articles with beyond 18 pages will not be considered.

- The study and review of evidences for allowing or not allowing the translation of Qur'an.
- The review of juridical sentences in translation of Qur'an.
- Translations of the Qur'an and interdisciplinary topics (linguistics, semantics and anthropology, etc.)
- Qur'an and Ḥadīth translation methodology and stylistics.
- History of Qur'anic translations and the review of its historical evolution.
- The impact and influence of Qur'an translations in Persian and Arabic literature.
- Translation of Qur'an from the perspective of language historical evolution.
- Translation of the Qur'an and political, social and economic developments.
- Teaching methods of translation of the Holy Qur'an.
- Comparative review of Persian and non-Persian translations of Qur'an.
- The role of ancient Arabic and Persian dictionaries in translation of the Qur'an and Ḥadīth.
- The impact of Ḥadīth on translating the Qur'an.
- The advantages and disadvantages of new technologies in the translation of the Qur'an and religious texts.
- The role of language development in translation of the Qur'an and Islamic sacred texts.
- Mechanisms for strengthening the translations of Qur'an and Islamic sacred texts.
- Philological and linguistic study and review of ancient Translations of the Qur'an such as Tafsir al-Tabari, Tafsir Sūr-Abadi, Tafsir Qur'an-e Pak, Tafsir Abū al- Futūḥ.
- The review of Isra'iliyyat and its influence in translation of Qur'an.

Goals:

- To develop a professional look to the field of translation of the Qur'an and Ḥadīth.
- To introduce the principles and foundations of translation of the Qur'an and other narrative books.
- To perform profound researches in the field of translation of Qur'an.
- To develop infrastructures for identifying and evaluating appropriate styles and methods in the translation of the Qur'an, the holy traditions and religious sources.
- To prepare the ground for solving the problems of translation of the Holy Qur'an, the holy Ḥadīth and the other books in the future.
- To prepare the ground for reviewing and studying the theories of translation and linguistics in the field of the Qur'an and Ḥadīth and religious books.
- To provide the perfect platform to help translators of the Qur'an, Ḥadīth and interpretative books for presenting proper translations.

The Journal accepts articles in the following topics:

- Critical analysis of Persian and non-Persian translations of Qur'an based on the theories of translation.
- Critical review of interpretations of the Holy Qur'an in different languages.
- The study and review of translations of Nahj al-Balagha, narrative books, supplications and other religious sources.
- Identifying the problems and difficulties associated with translation of Qur'an and Ḥadīth.
- Pathology and Finding obstacles in translation of Qur'an and Ḥadīth.
- Identifying the principles and methods of Qur'an and Ḥadīth Translations.
- The study and review of (theological, philosophical, juridical and mystical) principles of Qur'an and Ḥadīth translation.
- Comparative review of Shia and Sunni translations of Qur'an.

A Biannual Journal of Qur'an- Hadīth Translation Studies

Publisher	TarbiatModares University
Editor-in-Chief	Dr. Saeed Najafi Asadollahi
Director-in-Charge	Dr. Ali Haji-Khani
Internal Manager	Sayyed Ebrahim Arman
Executive Editor	Shohre Heidari

Editorial Board

Saeed Bozorg-Bigdeli (Assoc.Prof.)	Aliyeh Kord Zaferanlou (Assoc.Prof.)
Ali Haji-Khani (Assis.Prof.)	Abbas Mosallaei-poor (Assoc.Prof.)
Roqayeh Rostam-poor Maleki (Assoc.Prof.)	Hamid-reza Mir-haji (Assoc.Prof.)
Kavous Rouhi (Assis.Prof.)	Reza Nazemiyan (Assoc.Prof.)
Abdol-Hadi Feqhi-zadeh (Assoc.Prof.)	Saeed Najafi Asadollahi (Prof.)
Fathiyeh Fattahi-zadeh (Assoc.Prof.)	Naser Nikoo-bakht (Prof.)

Literary Editor (Persian), Type and Layout	Shohreh Heydari
Literary Editor (English)	Mahdi Naseri
Technical Advisor	Mostafa Janjani
Print	Shams

Address: Tarbiat Modares University, Tehran, Islamic Republic of Iran

P.O. Box: 14115-139

Tel. Fax: 82883636

E-mail: mmtqh@modares.ac.ir

Single Issue Price: 30000 RIS

Biannual Journal of Qur'an-Hadīth Translation Studies

Volume 3, Number 6, Fall & Winter 2016-2017

- A Review of Persian translation of Quran (Case study: the Tenth-Century Translation)..... 1
Hossein Taktabar Firooz-jaei, Mahdi Naseri, Hasan Meghyasi
- The Analysis of the meaning of “Arabic Fa” in Persian Translations of Quran 31
Ali Haji-Khani, Abolfazl Haji Heydari, Sadeq Abbasi
- The Semantic Frames of the Verb “Ra’ ā” (beholding) on the Holy Koran and the Persian Formats (Based on Charles Fillmore's the Semantic Meaning Theory) 57
Farzaneh Haji-Qasemi, Nasrollah Shameli
- Critical Study of Emphasis Devices of Ablative Absolute and Turning Synonyms in the English Translations of the Holy Qur'an Based on House Textual Theory (Case of Study: Shakir, Irving, Hilālī – Khān Translations)..... 85
Mahmoud Vaezi, Qasem Faez, Mohammad Reza Rasuli Ravandi
- The challenge translation of the literal similarity singular verses in Holy Quran (Case study: The heterogeneous in terms of noun and verb or type of verbs)..... 125
Karam Siyavoshi, Somayyeh salmanian
- A critical review of the translation of "Halal Tayyib" in 54 Persian translations of the Quran 157
Akbar Sajedi
- A Study of Perlocutionary in Two Different Types of Commandments in Quran and Their Translations 191
Seyyed Ali Azghar Sultani, Mahdi Moqaddasi-niya
- Abstract 219